GODOWNS SET AFIRE; HEAVY LOSS RESULTS FROM FLAMES

China Merchants' Warehouse Ignited And Starts Fierce Blaze

CROWD ATTENDS

Brilliant Illumination Of Sky Attracts People To Scene

TIDE OF TALLOW

Grease Sheds Destruction As It Flows Among Great Buildings

Fire that originated in a godown of the China Merchants' Company on the Quai des France early yesterday and was borne on streams of blazing tallow to adjoining godown structures engaged the efforts of the fire department of the French Concession, the International Settlement Fire Brigade and the department from the Chinese City through half of the day yesterday before it was finally subdued. No estimate has yet been placed on the extent of the loss, but it is thought that it will run in excess of a million taels.

The first alarm was given a few minutes before 5 o'clock in the morning and by the time that the departments had brought streams into action the sky was lighted by high mounting flames that gave to distant onlookers the impression that the entire waterfront along the French Bund was on fire. The spectacle, early in the morning as it was, brought out a great throng of people that formed in close packed ranks outside the fire lines.

Both the French and Settlement Brigades received the call for aid about the same time. It was found that the blaze had started in No. 18 godown of the China Merchants Company, packed full of general merchandise with a large quantity of hemp, tallow and other highly inflamible products.

IN WAREHOUSE GROUP

Godown No. 18, a large two-story structure, stood in the center of a group of huge warehouses between the Quai des France and the Quai des Ramparts and as the blaze spread swiftly the narrow corridor-like alleyways between the buildings were filled with suffocating smoke clouds beneath which flowed streams of burning tallow from the warehouse in which the fire started.

These streams and the mounting flames overhead carried the fire first into and beneath the eaves of the next big godown, No. 19, and it spread then to the others, first to No. 20 and afterwards despite all the efforts of the hard fighting firemen to the outer walls and roof of godown No. 16, the contents of which, however, were kept from damage.

FRENCHMEN ACTIVE

Under the direction of Captain Chapeaux the French department took up hazardous positions beneath a spreading sheet of flame and attacked the fire from the Quai des France and the Quai des Ramparts. On the call of Chief Officer Pett a section of Central Division of the Settlement Fire Brigade responded promptly and was brought into action from the wharf side of the flaming area from which in a brief space three powerful jets were brought into action supplementing those of the French Brigade. For all of an hour it seemed that the firemen on both sides of the conflagration must give way before the fiery blasts that swept them where they stood and for a time little hope was held that any of the whole block of great warehouse structures with their stores of merchandise could be saved.

It was seen soon after the departments came into action that it would be impossible to save godown No. 18 or any of its contents and while efforts were being made to check the spread of the fire from this source to the other warehouses the fight was carried to the adjoining godown No. 19 then alight from end to end with the fire well started among the bales and boxes with which it was packed. Godown No. 20 on the Quai des Ramparts and running parallel with No. 19 was also then burning.

Heavy Indemnity Demand Of France For Breslau Riot

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, September 1.—The French Ambassador at Berlin has notified the German Minister for Foreign Affairs that the reparations which France demands to be made promptly by the German Government for the Breslau incident are the following:

(1) Repair of the French Consulate at the German Government's expense.

(2) Payment of an indemnity of 100,000 marks gold as reparation for damages and expenses incurred by the Consular Staff.

(3) Punishment both of those directly guilty of the attack on the Consulate and of the agitators who organised the riots.

NAVAL PROGRAM WILL GO AHEAD PENDING TREATY

Daniels Says There Can Be No Cessation Of Enlargement At This Time

(Reuter's Service)

Charleston, Virginia, August 31.—Mr. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, in the course of a speech here said that the delay in the ratification of the treaty of Versailles had prevented the cessation of naval enlargement. There had therefore been no change in the plans of American naval development.

"We are not only completing a great naval armor and projectile plant at Charleston," continued the secretary of the navy, "We are building enormous docks and other shore facilities elsewhere, and we are constructing eighteen dreadnoughts and battle cruisers with a dozen other powerful ships, which in effective fighting power will give our navy world supremacy."

Speaker Declares European Immigrants Suffer From Lack Of Initiative

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 1.—The Asahi publishes an article by Viscount Kato, the former Minister for Foreign Affairs, and leader of the Opposition, in connection with the visit of the American Congressional party to Japan.

Viscount Kato says that it is timely to make an effort to improve relations between America and Japan.

CALIFORNIA SITUATION

The anti-Japanism in California, the writer remarks, is due to the diligence, frugality, cheap labor and other virtues of the Japanese in contradistinction to European immigrants who cannot compete with them.

"Therefore," proceeds Viscount Kato, "the problem is one of racial prejudice and must be settled by the Americans themselves. Japan is responsible for straightening out the problem only insofar as Japanese do wrong.

"It is inconceivable that American-born Japanese should alone be discriminated against with regard to citizenship. The agitation is a local problem in the United States; nevertheless it contravenes the principles of righteousness and humanity."

DISCUSSES MILITARISM

The writer admits that the charge of militarism which is brought against Japan forms part of the question, but he asserts that immigrants who are ready to submit to American laws and customs should be treated accordingly. He denies that there are military spies among the grants.

The Japanese are not an exceptional people, Viscount Kato continues; they have merits and demerits the same as others, but, he maintains, they are just as assimilable as other peoples. Many Japanese who have long resident in the United States become completely Americanised.

Viscount Kato concludes with the hope that the Congressmen will study Japan thoroughly and sympathetically, "because a knowledge of the conditions and principles of people is the sole foundation of friendship."

PARTY WELCOMED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Kyoto, September 1.—The Mayor and Mayoress of Kyoto and the Municipal officials and their ladies were hosts at a formal reception given in the beautiful Municipal Auditorium to the Congressional party this afternoon. Refreshments were served in the hall where the Emperor received the leading citizens in audience after his coronation.

The Mayor, in the course of his address, quoted the American Constitution, declaring that men are born free and equal, which he amplified by pointing out that Americans and Japanese are "equally God's children," so a spirit of justice and love should rule both.

London, August 31.—The meeting of the Triple Alliance today after hearing Mr. Robert Smillie, president of the Miners' Federation, passed a resolution declaring that the Alliance was unanimously of opinion that the miners' claims were reasonable and just and should be conceded forthwith.

The conference reassembles tomorrow to consider further policy.

MAY BE SETTLED

It is understood that this resolution was fully anticipated and in no way blocks the way to further negotiations for an ultimate peaceful settlement.

London, August 31.—Concurrent with the coal crisis in Great Britain a similar crisis has arisen in America. Reuters Washington correspondent telegraphs:

ACCEPTS CHALLENGE

"President Wilson has signed the mine wages award, increasing miners' wages from 17 to 20 percent meanwhile the miners threatened to strike, unless the minority report, recommending a higher award was adopted, to which President Wilson replied that the challenge would be accepted and in the event of a strike the people would find substitute fuel to tide them over until the time when the miners were ready to abide by their obligations."

$200,000 Needed By Canton Militarist To Conduct Kwangsi Campaign

NO ADVANCE IS MADE

Dissension, Food Shortage And Looting Hinder His Progress

A request for the sum of $200,000 for military expenses has been made by General Chen Chiung-ming, the Canton militarist who is conducting a campaign against the Kwangsi forces, with the local Cantonese Guild.

It is understood that a special meeting has been called for Sunday afternoon by the guild authorities to discuss the matter.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, September 1.—The Headquarters of the Military Governor states:

ON THE DEFENSIVE

"The Kwangsi troops in the Chaochow district have so far been on the defensive. The Kwangtung troops have not launched an attack during the last few days.

"There has been no fighting at Paoling or Hualai and the Kwangsi men still hold Haifung and Lukfung. Press reports to the contrary are untrue.

"Colonel Lui Ting-cheung's regiment are the only Kwangsi troops at Waichow.

CANTON IS QUIET

"In the fighting at Tichiang the Kwangtung troops were defeated. Kwangsi troops occupy the Chikom district; the report of its loss is incorrect. Since his occupation of the city General Chen Chiungming has not made any advance at Swatow; dissension in the Kwangtung army, want of food supplies, looting by the troops and disapproval of his action by the Northern and Yangtsze Tuchuns are hindering his progress.

"The Kwangsi troops are cutting the railway [illegible] Hsiakeng, which is the only line of communications.

"Canton is quiet."

RUSSIANS QUIET AS PLANS FORM FOR OFFENSIVE

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 31.—Except in the Lemberg region, where fierce fighting continues, operations on the Polish front have died down, both sides evidently being busy regrouping their forces.

The Bolshevik communique today claims the capture of a number of villages near Bielostok, where it is expected that a Red counter-offensive will develop.

With regard to General Wrangel the communique declares that General Wrangel's force which landed in the Kuban Province has ceased to exist and that the remnants 'are hiding in the reeds." The communique adds that over a thousand prisoners and a large amount of material were taken and three generals were cut down.

Paris, August 31.—According to a Warsaw telegram the negotiations at Minsk have been interrupted. Most of the Polish delegates have gone to Brest-Litovsk and the Soviet delegates to Moscow.

Both sides will probably resume the conference within a week at Riga, by permission of the Latvian Government.

SEMENOFF SAFE BELIEF OF AIDE AT JAPAN CAPITAL

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 1.—With reference to the report that Ataman Semenoff and a number of his officers had been seriously injured by a bomb at Chita station, Colonel Karupenko, the Ataman's representative in Tokio states that he has received a telegram from Semenoff, the time of despatch of which is subsequent to the time at which the bomb attempt is supposed to have occurred. The telegram makes no mention of an attack and may therefore be taken as showing that Semenoff is safe.

Million Miles Of Flying In Two Years Results In Only 11 Accidents

The New Orleans Times, Picayune, gives commercial aviation a substantial boost in its issue of June 20. Since 1918, United States airships which have patrolled a distance of over a million miles and carried several thousand persons, have had only 11 accidents resulting in no injuries or deaths. A list of the accidents follows:

"First—On April 16, 1918 a kite balloon was wrecked at Cape May, N. J. due to a high wind with no one injured or killed.

Second—On May 16, 1918 a dirigible was wrecked at Rockaway due to its being unfit for further use with no one injured or killed.

Third—On July 11, 1918 a kite balloon was struck by lightning while on board a United States battleship with no one injured or killed.

Fourth—On July 24, 1918 a dirigible was partly destroyed by fire at Miami, Fla. Part of the car was damaged. No one was injured or killed.

Fifth—On January 14, 1919 a dirigible drifted away due to the motor cutting out, at Miami with no one injured or killed.

Sixth—On January 20, 1919 a dirigible was disabled at Pensacola, Fla. due to the rudder getting out of order. A landing was accomplished successfully although the fabric was ripped, with no one killed or injured.

Seventh—On February 11, 1919 a dirigible was forced to land at

Soverign Will Not Take Dangerous Step, Says Lord Stamfordham

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 31.—The conflict at Belfast is assuming all the features of Civil War. Yesterday's daylong fighting continued on into the night.

Numerous incendiary fires lighting up the whole city were started last night and were watched by dense crowds.

There were 20 conflagrations in the Shankill district, where practically every spirit grocery and many public houses, occupied by Roman Catholics, were ignited. The fire brigade was unable to cope with the demands. Refugees fleeing in hundreds have arrived in Tyrone.

TROOPS ARRIVE

The Cameron Highlanders arrived in Dublin from the Curragh by motor lorry early this morning, whence they were despatched by special trains to Belfast.

London, August 31.—His Majesty's Secretary, Lord Stamfordham, replying to Mr. Horatio Bottomley, who urged His Majesty to take "an unconventional step" and make "an experiment worth trying" with regard to the release of the Lord Mayor of Cork, submits that this would be unconstitutional rather than unconventional, and that it would be dangerous for the Sovereign to make such experiments upon the Constitution.

MUST BE PERSONAL ACTION

Lord Stamfordham points out that even if His Majesty favored release, this could only be effected by the Sovereign's personal action in face of his Ministers' advice and with the presumable result of their resignation and also the further risk that the country at large might regard the price paid too high for the object attained and blame His Majesty for creating a grave political crisis at time of special national stress.

People Live On Weeds As Famine Sweeps North

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, September 2.—Numerous reports from Honan, Shantung and South Chihli emphasise the extreme gravity of the food situation in those provinces.

The meagre harvest of last year, followed by the failure of the spring and autumn crops of 1920 has brought at least twenty million people face to face with actual famine and thousands are starving already.

Whole districts are living on weeds, leaves of trees or bran, and there have been several authenticated cases in which whole families, having already reached the end of their resources, have committed suicide together. Many parents are selling their children, especially girls, for a few dollars.

Thousands of animals are being killed owing to lack of fodder or sold for a mere song. Numbers of inhabitants are fleeing from their homes, emigrating to North or West.

Experienced foreigners consider the situation unprecedented at the end of the summer, and predict the most serious famine for over forty years in the coming winter.

Attack By Tribesmen Is Expected On Euphrates

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 31.—The following communique on the situation in Mesopotamia was issued this evening:

'On the Lower Euphrates the expected attack has not yet materialised. A flotilla bringing up supplies from Nasirie reached the town (?) after some opposition.

In the Hillah area a column of the 34th brigade advanced on Iman and Hamzra from Jerboiyah and carried out punitive measures against several localities in the neighborhood.

Aeroplanes assisted this force, which is now returning to Hillah, which town is quiet. A small gathering of rebels near-by was dispersed by shell-fire.

North of Bagdad the country is becoming more disturbed. A body of tribesmen near Bel-Ed. was scattered by aeroplanes.

North-east of Bagdad the garrison at Tuz Khermutli has been relieved by a small column which drove off the enemy, killing 30.

Bakubah station and town which were found to have been sacked by the insurgents were retaken on August 28.

Zionist Conference Marks New Era In Jewish History

Delegates, Knowing Golden Opportunity Had Come To Israel In Palestine, Made Sweeping Sacrifices To Realise Dream

London, July 24.—Not since Titus destroyed Jerusalem and scattered the Jewish people to the four corners of the Roman Empire has there ever been such an important Jewish meeting as the Zionist congress, which concluded its sessions here Thursday. Who can tell that this Jewish conference may not prove the beginning of a new epoch in Jewish history, rivaled only by that recorded in the Bible? The similarity of this period to the days of Ezra and Nehemiah is virtually an accepted fact.

When, on April 24 last, the Supreme Council at San Remo wrote into the Turkish treaty the famous Balfour declaration pledging the signatories in favor of the "establishment in Palestine of a national home for Jewish people," the Jewish people, as David Lloyd George then told the Zionist leader, Dr. Weizman, "were given a start—it was now up to them to make good."

The Zionist delegates assembled, whether national leaders or of the rank and file, seemed to realise clearly that this, the greatest opportunity that has come to Israel in nineteen centuries, was only an opportunity, and that properly to avail themselves of all required tremendous sacrifices. Moreover, this opportunity carried with it, as one leader put it, a sort of challenge—a challenge by the whole world to the Jewish people to make good its age-long prayer for the restoration of Zion.

And Zion is a barren, desolate land. The Zionists must not only build, but also first of all eradicate six or seven centuries of blighted misrule.

PREPARATORY WORK

In the past, whenever and wherever new settlements had been started, whenever has been attempted colonisation on a large scale, it was always on virgin soil, where a bountiful crop was the pioneer's almost certain reward. But the case is different in Palestine. There, due to terrible neglect, a year will be required of hard labor in preparatory work alone. True, the soil contains the possibility of becoming the best in the world. It resembles in practically every way Lower California, but centuries of abuse must first be removed before it can give forth of its best.

At present the land is arid, deforested and in many parts malaria infested. This conference had to consider, propose ways and means for transforming this barren, desolate land into a garden country —"a land flowing with milk and honey." That this is possible the sixty some odd Jewish colonies planted in Palestine during the course of the last thirty years bear living and eloquent witness.

That Great Britain expects no less of the Zionists in Palestine was clearly brought out the other day by Lord Curzon, when he was questioned in the House of Lords regarding Palestinian affairs.

From every part of central and eastern Europe comes the cry that the Jews in those sections cannot remain there any longer. The helplessness of the Jewish situation was never brought home so keenly to the American delegates as it is now. They are 3,000 miles nearer the scene of horror and travail.

EUROPEAN JEWS RUINED

Every new east European delegate corroborates the statement that the Jews in those countries are completely ruined and that their salvation lies in migration. The delegates are conscious of the fact that virtually the whole world is hermetically sealed against a large influx of immigrants. The dread of what is to become of the millions of central and eastern European Jews, who compose more than half of the Jewish race, hangs over the conference, like the sword Damocles.

There was not a delegate present but was ready to extend himself to the utmost that all who are clamoring for admittance, which is only another way of saying for a chance to the pursuit of life, liberty and some measure of happiness, be forthwith transported into Palestine. Furthermore, the Zionist organisation is a thoroughly democratic body, fully responsive and responsible to its constituent membership—and this membership on more than one occasion gave due expression of its desire for an immediate large immigration into Palestine. A classic example of this feeling is the resolution the extraordinary convention of the Zionist Organisation of America adopted last May, which reads:

"In response to the longing of many Jews the world over to return to their homeland, as well as to afford to the oppressed and suffering of our people immediate relief from their present unendurable situation, we request the World Zionist Organisation to urge the British government to open forthwith the doors of Palestine to Jewish immigration."

BURDEN RESTS WITH ZIONIST

But here loom up the practical difficulties involved. Britain, the mandatory power over Palestine, through the mouth of its Secretary for Foreign Affairs, announced "that no man or woman would be admitted to the country (Palestine) whom the country was incapable of supporting, and indiscriminate mass immigration would certainly not be permitted."

This puts the whole burden of immigration squarely up to the Zionists. Before allowing any Jews to come to Palestine the Zionist commission will have to make sure the country is capable of supporting them. Consequently the responsibility of the conference in the matter of immigration is a grave one and fraught with most serious difficulties.

But Jewish immigration into Palestine must take place or the whole movement for the restoration of the "land without a people to the people without a land" will suffer greatly. Experts are now therefore working up plans as to whether the immigration shall be purely one of colonisation, or that coupled with agricultural undertakings be that of industrial enterprises.

Furthermore, whether the colonisation be planned along the old methods of "extensive" farming in use in most parts of the world, which, according full values of the soil, but which allows for large areas of cultivation, or shall the colonisation be confined to what is known as the "intensive" method, operated with success in China, Japan and certain parts of the United States. Though there is not a unanimity of opinion on this point, all are agreed that the operation be confined to one contiguous territory.

The World Zionist Organisation stands pledged to commence work shortly on the university to be erected on Mount Scopus, for which the architectural designs have already been drawn by that famous British architect, Professor Patrick Geddes. A great many of the world's foremost scientists already have expressed their willingness to serve on the faculty, among them Professor Einstein, the celebrated physicist, and Professor S. Freud, the creater of psycho-analysis. But there is no plan as yet as to the departments the university is to have and mainly as to which department should be started at once.

The delegates removed at least one difficulty upon their arrival at London, and that is the so called Arab problem. This was a most vexing question, but the delegates found it had been grossly exaggerated. The Arabs—that is, the greater majority of them—are most kindly disposed toward the Zionist idea. They realise that Jewish immigration can only be a benefit for the country. This feeling is particularly true of the Arab peasant, who on more than one occasion gave evidence of a friendliness for his Jewish neighbors.

ARAB TO SHARE ADVANTAGES

The Zionists also have now a clearer vision of this problem. They realise that in the development of the country the Arab must be carried along. The same standard of living must apply to the Arab that applies to the Jews. The Arab children must be as well educated as the Jewish. In short, the Arab must share in all advantages there are to accrue to the country at large because of the Jewish interest in its development. At whatever cost there must not be permitted in Palestine a duplication of the negro problem Americans have today in the South.

Every decision of this conference will echo and reecho through the corridors of time immemorial—as did those of Ezra and Nehemiah. Only that their task was comparatively much simpler.

Even the effort put forth by the nations in the World War, tremendous as that was, is not comparable to what the Zionists are now called upon to do. The nations were organised, had ready governments and unlimited means. While for the building up of Palestine, the changing of a desolate waste into a blooming community, requiring untold resources in men, money and ingenuity, the entire machinery will first have to be created. It can only be accomplished through great sacrifices.

As Dr. Max Nordau, whom the Zionists affectionately call "the grand old man," put it: "We must be heroic—or we will not be."

jets were turned into the heart of the blaze in Godown No. 19.

To aid in the work another section from the Settlement Brigade was summoned and also the Fire Float was brought into action. At one time the flames were swept by the early morning breeze sidewise under the eaves of a number of Chinese godowns and it was then too that the fourth godown, No. 16 took fire with flames mounting from the roof. This godown and its contents were saved by Settlement firemen stationed on the roof with handpumps and hooks.

Particularly good work was done by the brigade from the Chinese City working with a new pump from a hydrant on the city side of the Quai des Ramparts at the southwest portion of the conflagration.

HEAVY DAMAGE

When the blaze was practically extinguished early yesterday afternoon it was found that godown No. 18 where the fire started and contents had been destroyed, Godown No. 19 and contents were partly destroyed and Godown No. 20 was damaged on the side facing No. 19. Only slight damage was done to No. 16 which was heavily stocked with tea. The offices of the China Merchants Company were not damaged.

While this fire was in progress a section of Central Division answered an alarm about 7 o'clock from 253 Amoy Road, a Chinese dwelling where embers falling from a stove had set fire to a portion of the woodwork. This fire was swiftly put out with slight loss.

Tenth—On August 5, 1919 a kite balloon was destroyed by fire due to a static spark at Coco Solo with no resulting injuries or deaths.

Eleventh—On October 14, 1919 a free balloon had the fabric ripped due to roping at Cape May with no resulting injuries or deaths.

Such a record as this speaks well for the future of commercial aeronautics especially from the point of view of safety."

"GOLD FLAKE" CIGARETTES

An Old Friend—in new Surroundings.

Announcement

We beg to announce the arrival in China of a shipment of "GOLD FLAKE" cigarettes from England.

Gold Flake brand has not only been a favourite at home but won great popularity on the Western Front during the War.

We feel sure that our friends in China will be pleased with this new arrival which has so decidedly proven its good qualities.

Manitoba's Startling Election

BY A. BERNON THOMAS
(The Nation)

When Huck Finn's alcoholic "pap" wished to convey that he had on hand a generous quantity of whiskey he invariably described the supply as enough for two drunks and one delirium tremens. The startling result of the general election in the Canadian Province of Manitoba, the oldest of the western provinces, seems to demand some similar standard of comparison. At any rate liberals who have had to witness the panorama of tragedy, unrolled during the past few years, may be pardoned some mild measure of spiritual intoxication when they understand what has happened in Manitoba. Here it is in a nutshell:

Frederick J. Dixon, a Labor man, who, for his stand against the war, endured the abuse of friend and foe, was mobbed, charged with sedition, arrested thrown into prison and for a time refused bail, heads the poll in Winnipeg with a huge plurality, a surplus of 7,274 votes as against a surplus of 73 won by the Attorney General, a machine politician. The Rev. Mr. Ivens, Labor candidate, who lost his pulpit through his pacifist views; John Queen, Social Democrat, and George Armstrong, Socialist Party of Canada, all of them now in prison, are all elected for the City of Winnipeg. They are serving sentences of one year each for alleged seditious conspiracy in connection with the general strike of last year. Eleven Labor, Labor-Farmer, or Socialist candidates, have been elected in the Province, four in Winnipeg and seven outside. In the previous Legislature there was but one Labor man—Dixon—while outside of Winnipeg no Labor man was ever before elected. At one bound Labor now becomes the chief opposition with Dixon its probable leader. The Government loses some seventeen seats and with them it losses control, as it now has twenty members in a House of fifty-five. A group of ten Independents, mainly farmers, has been elected and nine Conservatives.

The Manitoba Free Press, the chief organ of the Government, in an editorial upon the result, practically invites the Conservatives to dissolve as a party. It goes on to say that:

As for the Conservative Party, the vote has made clear to all what has been quite evident to everybody who looked at the matter coolly—the fact that its strength has gone from it. It is a dying party which can never be revived. The Conservative Party in Manitoba is well along the road which its namesake in Australia traveled some years ago, the end of which will be absorption by some party which is alive.

Modesty—or is it doubt?—restrains the Free Press from naming the party "which is alive." In Manitoba something has happened which can no longer be hid, although the New York Times, at this writing, has not had the heart to inform its readers what has taken place. For the Times devoted many columns last summer to blackening the character of the Winnipeg strike leaders. It is now to be symathised with if it feels no stomach for recording that four of these same strike leaders, three of whom are in prison, have been elected to the Manitoba Legislature, and that one of them heads the poll in the city of Winnipeg by a huge plurality.

Primarily the verdict in Winnipeg represents a revulsion of feeling in favor of the strike leaders, notably in favor of Mr. Dixon, whose acquittal a few weeks ago, after a defense which he conducted himself, will remain for many a long day one of the great trials of Canada. The seizure of the strike leaders, and the whole course of the prosecution, were marked by blind passion on the part of the authorities.

Mr. Dixon is one of the big men of the Canadian West. He went out to Winnipeg some fifteen or sixteen years ago from the English biscuit town of Reading. For some years he worked in Winnipeg at his trade, that of designer. About this time he read Henry George's "Progress and Poverty," and became not merely a disciple of the great land reformer, but a veritable evangelist of the Single Tax. He made constant headway. After years of soap-box oratory, he gradually won his way to indoor favor, addressing farmers' meetings, church gatherings, political conventions, and progressive groups of all kinds. His frank, open radiant face bespoke absolue sincerity and intense conviction. It was a joy to his friends to see his big athletic figure and listen to his great voice, which is of Madison Square Garden caliber. Although relatively unknown, and quite inexperienced politically, he came, in 1907, within an ace of upsetting one of the old-time and old-line politicians of Winnipeg. Finally, when the Liberals at last came into power in the Province, in 1915, Dixon enjoyed so much popularity that although insistent upon running as an Independent no Liberal opposed him for the Winnipeg seat he contested, and he received the highest majority obtained by any candidate in the whole Province.

But the war spirit was even then developing and it meant a Calvary for Mr. Dixon. From the first he took the pacifist viewpoint and steadfastly refused to join in the orgy of hatred and upreason. He simply maintained the beliefs and opinions he had always held. He continued to say what he had always said, but slowly his star began to sink. Old friends deserted him. Magazines and newspapers which had delighted to honor him and have him write for them found it undesirable to have his name appear in their pages, or if it found a place there it was for the purpose of abuse and cynical comment. Meetings at which he spoke were broken up, and on one occasion he was attacked by a mob and personally assaulted. A demand was made that he resign from the Legislature. Dixon rallied to this by introducing a recall bill applicable to every member. This challenge was refused and he kept his seat. But the tide of popular favor had now left him high and dry.

One scene which took place in the Manitoba Legislature will not easily be forgotten by those who saw it. It was January, 1917. Dixon had made a speech against the war. He had demanded that nothing be left undone to secure peace. He had asked whether the Allies were as disinterested as they claimed to be, whether after all the boys were not dying for a myth. He quoted from Henry W. Nevinson, A. G. Gardiner, and others to show that it was likely to be the old game of grab. This speech, which, as events have proved, was abundantly justified, greatly incensed the Liberals, and after adjournment they gathered in little groups on one side of the chamber, discussing Dixon's "disloyalty" and "treason," while casting angry glances to where he sat alone at his desk. Two newspapermen, one an editorial writer, the other a reporter, shook hands with him as they passed and dared to congratualate him on his speech. Within a week they were both "fired" from the principal "Liberal" newspaper at Winnipeg.

Very different is the picture today. While many factors peculiar to Manitoba politics have undoubtedly played a part in the recent election, it is none the less true that the result reflects a world-wide process—the death of liberalism as we have known it in modern times. Tragic as it is to see men who in the past have given liberalism genuine and sincere service being absorbed in the ranks of reaction, it is nevertheless a fate which is bound to overtake our old Liberal and Democratic parties. They are war casualties. Long ago the Liberals of Manitoba lost all title to the grand old name of "liberal." When the ordeal came in 1917 over the question of conscription the Manitoba Liberals, with quite negligible exceptions, proved unequal to it. They deserted their old chief, who, if any man ever represented traditional and historic liberalism—respect for the personality and opinions of others, faith in the judgments of the people and willingness to abide by them, toleration of the views of opponents and a desire to understand them, a profound belief in freedom of religion, of speech and of the press—it was Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Yet he only asked that the people of Canada be given an opportunity at once to say by way of a referendum, as was done twice in Australia, whether they desired conscription. And this was denied him.

But it was not in the conscription election alone that the Manitoba Liberals betrayed liberalism. There developed in Canada as the war months went on much the same system of espionage and summary arrest as has prevailed in this country. Hundreds of innocent persons had their homes invaded, their persons molested, were arrested and flung into jail, usually on paltry and unsubstantial evidence. The weak and defenseless were the object of pitiless attack. And while this orgy of Prussianism was developing, and as it rose to its height, the Manitoba Liberals, again with negligible exceptions, either remained silent or supported the campaign of tyranny. Unfortunately the spectacle is not confined to Manitoba.

New Branch Bank Opens In Hankow

The Hankow Branch of the Chinese-American Bank of Commerce (Commercial and Industrial Bank of China) opened for business on Wednesday, September 1. During the reception hours over 350 visitors called and paid their respects to the management. Among the visitors were many Chinese and Americans, manufacturers, merchants and bankers. Representatives of the Military and Civil Governors also attended the reception. Heavy deposits were received on the first day. Everybody seemed confident of the success of the new banking institution.

motion of friendship and for lasting peace.

Congressman Dyer, of Missouri, in an eloquent reply, declared that every true American was desirous of peace with Japan, a nation which had advanced in power and greatness alongside America, since Perry's visit. He expressed America's pride in Japan's progress.

Both addresses were loudly applauded.

The rest of today was spent in shopping and sight-seeing, including a climb, by a party headed by Baron Kanda, up Mount Hieizan.

The Congressional Party arrived in Tokio on Thursday evening.

Tokio, September 2.—The Congressional Party will arrive here this evening. The leading papers without exception make the visit of the Congressmen the subject of editorial articles, offering them a cordial welcome and expressing the hope that, short though their stay will be, they will make the most of the opportunity afforded them of seeing Japan in her true light, which, the newspapers add, will no doubt impress the visitors with Japan's sincere friendship for America.

In addition to the public functions which have been arranged in honor of the Congressmen, Baron Mitsui, Marquis Okuma, Baron Shibusawa and others will invite them to private parties at their homes.

FRANCE TRAINS TROOPS IN ALL FORMS OF WAR

Coming Maneuvers To Include Airplanes, Tanks And Poison Gas

NO MORE MERE DRILLS

Same Trenches And Dugouts That Sheltered The Allies Will Be Used

Paris, July 24.—The wars of the future will not be less terrible than that one which was loosened by the Germans in 1914, if the plans of the French maneuvers, which are to be held late this summer, are to be taken as an indication. Incidentally, these maneuvers will add an interesting reflection on President Wilson's peace treaty, which was supposed to turn the minds of mankind from military thoughts and to make for an eternal and wonderful peace.

It must not be thought that France is more military than any other nation of Europe, but the fact that she has continued to call classes to the colors makes it necessary that they should get some idea of what war is like. Therefore, France's military chiefs have outlined a tentative scheme which will teach the horrors of war without the students experiencing the dangers of actual conflict.

The maneuvers are to furnish a perfect image of a real battle, with airplanes, tanks, machine guns trenches, artillery, bomb-throwers hand grenades, smoke clouds and even poison gas protection included in the list of subjects wherein students must be proficient.

The announcement that the maneuvers will not be confined to marches, sleeping in fields and the carrying out of intricate drills, as in the past, is causing consternation among peace apostles, who are already suggesting that the teaching of French youths how to kill by the most ghastly methods will have only one logical effect—to induce other nations to do likewise with the result that France will some day find herself faced by some nation as highly trained as were the Germans in 1914.

Tactical problems have not been overlooked by France's military chiefs. In fact, France has wonderful facilities for these maneuvers, and actual battles will be fought at Verdun and at Rheims in Artois, on the Aisne and on the Marne, where troops will use the same trenches and the same dugouts that sheltered the allied heroes during the five years of the world war. Certain areas have been reserved for training purposes and the trenches there will be maintained in their present condition at the expense of the Government an expenditure which undoubtedly will be recovered from tourists desirous, say in the next decade, of seeing just what war trenches look like and who are willing to hand out frances for the privilege of seeing them.

Militaristic nations also should not overlook the fact that while the French army hereafter will be based on two years' service, youths when demobilised, will be transferred to the reserves, from which they will not be released for thirty years. This will give France a total of between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 fully trained men, who will be available for duty at any time.

France Is Scrapping Powder Factories

A Few Small Plants To Be Kept For Emergencies

Paris, July 24.—France has again refuted the charge that she is militaristic by commencing to transform her powder factories into industrial plants not allied with war. The largest munitions plant in Toulouse is being adapted to the manufacture of phosphate, fertiliser and ammonia through the extraction of nitrates from available powder supplies.

Even the French War Minister has approved the plan, although he has insisted on holding some of the factories in case of emergency. In this he was supported by Gen Mangin, who asserted that until universal peace is really established it would be unwise to throw away the sword without even turning it into a ploughshare. The present plan is to maintain several small plants, which will be devoted to the manufacture of guncotton, in which form it can be preserved until needed.

Churchill Lashes Trade Union Critics

Says Great Powers Made Bargain With Kolchak For Which He Is Condemned

London, July 25.—Winston Churchill has sent a spirited reply to the Leicester and District Trades Council, which forwarded to him a resolution protesting against hi "secret agreement with Admiral Kolchak for the supply of troops to wage war on Soviet Russia." Further, "it views with alarm the continued contempt for public opinion manifested by the House of Commons with regard to these revelations, and considers that the presence of Mr. Churchill in the War Office is a public scandal and a danger to the country."

Mr. Churchill begins by declaring that he never made any such secret agreement.

"What your council is perhaps thinking of," he continues "is t agreement made with Kolchak on July 3 last year by the five great powers, Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy and Japan, in which after receiving from him assurances that if successful he would establish a free constituent assembly on a democratic franchise for Russia they promised him the continuance of their aid and support. This agreement was signed, among others, by President Wilson himself."

As regards the House of Commons' contempt for public opinion, he points out that the Labor Party has many opportunities for obtaining the fullest possible Parliamentary discussion of the so-called Russian revelations.

Finally, Mr. Churchill writes:

"I wonder what would happen to the members of your council if instead of living under the free British Constitution, they were enjoying the inestimable benefits of civil rule in Russia. What would happen, for instance, to the Moscow and District Trades Council if they sent a resolution to Comrade Trotsky to the effect that his presence at the Russian War Office was a public scandal and a danger to the country. I do not think they would get a reasoned letter in reply. I think it much more likely they would be in jail before night and very likely in their coffins before the next morning."

PASSENGER RATES ANNOUNCED BY COMPANIES HERE

Official notice has been issued by the Shanghai branches of the five leading passenger carrying shipping companies of the 20 percent fare increase for first and second class fares across the Pacific. These notices follow cabled announcements received some time ago. The increased rates become effective September 15 and the five shipping companies taking action are: The Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Pacific Mail, China Mail, Toyo Kisen Kaisha and Nippon Yusen Kaisha.

In connection with the announcement it is made plain that outstanding deposit receipts or passage orders will be protected at old rates for all sailings up to and including December 31, provided passage money is paid in full on or before September 15.

The Shanghai branches of companies above named also have been instructed to collect 20 percent additional for all American railway fares for passengers arriving on the Pacific Coast after November 27. Fares for children across the Pacific will be as follows:

Under two years of age, 10 percent of adult fare; two years and under 10 years of age, half adult fare; ten years of age and over, full adult fare.

Jamica Will Seek Money For Harbor

Kingston, Jamaica, August 24.—The Jamaica government is planning to borrow in London $15,000,000 in order to make the port of Kingston a first-class one by deepening of the channel to the piers and other improvements. It is proposed to extend the railway to the wharves, to construct additional piers, erect a big dry dock and a wireless station and establish an oil and coaling depot for ships. One purpose of this program is to make Kingston a port of call for vessels passing through the Panama Canal. Members of the legislature assert that Kingston should be as well equipped as Christobal, the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal.

ABOUT BABY'S WEIGHT

Healthy babies should steadily increase in weight. When baby is not doing this there is something wrong, as was the case with the child of Mrs. Thomas Lawrence, a Canadian lady living at Collingwood, Ontario.

"My baby has been very delicate ever since she was three weeks old," writes Mrs. Lawrence. "She had indigestion, and although she had a ravenous appetite her food did not do her any good and she grew thinner and thinner. She would scream with the pain in her stomach, and as she was also troubled with constipation we were at times afraid we would lose her. I tried several medicines for her but they did no good. Then I tried Baby's Own Tablets, and her digestion improved. Now food does her good, and she is growing plump. I think the Tablets are a fine medicine for a child."

Baby's Own Tablets are obtainable from chemists, also at 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Census In Boston Gives Total 1,500,000

City Has Taken In Little Surrounding Territory To Swell Figures

Boston, August 18.—A compilation of 1920 census returns covering what is generally known as Greater Boston shows that the population of Boston and its suburbs has now reached almost exactly 1,500,000. Unlike most of the larger cities of the country, Boston has annexed very little of the territory immediately adjoining and has a total area of only 47.8 square miles, as compared with 287 square miles in Greater New York.

The Boston metropolitan district, covering an area within a 15-mile radius from the state house, includes 26 cities and towns in addition to Boston proper. The 1920 population of all of these except Watertown has been announced and the total is 732,541, for the suburbs. Watertown's population as recorded by the state census of 1915 was 16,515 a gain of 3,640 over 1910. If it made a similar gain in the last five years, it would now have 20,155 inhabitants. This, added to the other suburbs and to the 747,923 population of Boston, would make a total of 1,500,619.

The percentage of growth of most of the suburbs has been much greater in the last decade than that of Boston itself, due chiefly to the fact that a far larger number of people whose daily business is in this city have found it more agreeable to establish their homes outside the city limits. The great majority of the suburban population is made up of people whose work or business is in Boston. The city of Lynn, with a population of 99,148, is within the 15-mile limit, but is largely self-supporting through its shoe manufacturing and other industries and is not included in the compilation given above.

PRETTIEST ENGLISH FOOT

London, July 17.—At the Canadian Industries Exhibition in London a prize of £10 was offered for the Englishwoman with the most shapely foot. The judge awarded the prize to Miss Phyllis Bowell of Herne Hill.

But that has not settled the question of pedal perfection. Artists say she only boasts of the prettiest foot from the point of the shoemaker—not of the model.

BABE RUTH WINS NEW LAURELS ON BALL DIAMOND

Home Run Marvel Breaks Former Record When He Gets Thirtieth

SWATSMAN BUSY

Historical Slam Makes Big Fellow Enviable Character On Green Lot

BY SAM CRANE

New York, July 23.—Well, what do we care if the Yankees lost the second game with the White Sox?

Didn't Babe Ruth make his thirtieth home run and knock spots out of his last year's record of twenty-nine, the best ever, and also didn't Babe bust out his thirty-first on the same afternoon? So why should we worry about the Yanks' defeat?

That was the sentiment of the majority of the 28,000 fans, who saw Babe do the trick, and I among the rest thought I had nothing to kick about.

I came away from the Polo Grounds with the idea that I was one of the many thousands who were eminently well satisfied with the entire proceedings of the afternoon, even if I did get drenched by the rain, as many others did.

There were thousands and thousands of fans there who, notwithstanding all the disagreeable happenings due to the elements, the long delays, the slippery field and other unpreventable things, voted the afternoon a "perfect day," just because they got what they paid for, and that was to see Bambino smash the home run record.

BABE GETS BUSY

It was not until the fourth inning of the second game that Babe got smashingly busy with his big bludgeon. Pipp was on first and whenever that mascot pal of his is anchored on the initial cushion something has got to break.

Babe, of course was "on" to the situation that had faced him many times before and brought him good luck. Little Dick Kerr, although he appreciated the fact that a circuit clout by Babe would not only put the Yankees in the lead, but would also advertise himself as the pitcher off whose delivery Babe busted the record, never flinched. He put 'em over as he did all through the game and more credit to him for doing so. Dick Kerr will go down in baseball history as a nervy kid.

Well, with the count three and two, Babe got his historical slam. The ball was an incurve at about Babe's shoulder.

Well, the ball when Babe met it just sailed and sailed and sailed. Liebold was out in deep right, as far as he could be and he watched the flight of the ball with eagle eye. It was not going to escape his clutches if he could help it.

As Liebold dropped his hands the crowd realised that he had given up—that the ball was going where Babe intended it should over the fence of the right field open stand.

CROWD GOES WILD

Then what a roar of exultation! The crowd which previously was as silent as if they were taking their last gasp, launched a thunderous yell. Yes, a shriek that was hysterical as the ball cleared the fence and landed into the stand.

Well, if there was ever such a demonstration before, the writer was not around to witness it or participate in it and I have seen many, many of them.

Why, the spectators just went crazy. They were fans who would not have missed the chance to see the record-breaking circuit clout of all the long history of the national game and were just paralysed with joy over the fact that they had seen it.

It was in the ninth inning of the same second game of the double-header and with the same pitcher Dick Kerr in the box, that Babe tore off his thirty-first circuit clout. Babe sent the pill into the lower tier of the rightfield stand and while that too was a ferocious clout, it was nothing as compared to the record-breaker.

And by the way, Ping Bodie, in the fifth frame of the first game sent his buddy, Babe, home after the latter had doubled, with a home run into the leftfield bleachers. Babe in acknowledgement of the favor, gave Ping a few punches in the ribs. It is a fact that both Babe and Ping delight more in each other's homers that they do of their own. They are pals.

Then, again, our old friend Joe Jackson, also tore off a homer driving one into the right field stand in the second inning of the No. 2 game, and Roger Peckinpaugh did likewise into the left field bleachers in the eighth inning.

So it can be seen that there were sensations galore in the batting line, and as for the fielding there were more flash plays than could be seen in a whole week of normal contests.

School For Card Players

AUCTION BRIDGE

Question—A bets that holding ace, king and three small of a major suit, hearts or spades, justifies an original or free bid of one in that suit, either as first, second or third hand. B bets that an additional outside trick is necessary, or the bid is unsound. —S. S.

Answer—With a partner who knows anything about assisting, and who will not bid unless he has an assist, the declaration on any five-card suit headed by any two sure tricks—ace-king, ace-queen-jack or king-queen-jack—is sound. It is only with partners that will carry a bid to the ceiling on nothing but hopes that it is dangerous to start with nothing but the one suit. With such players one must have enough to make up for what they only think they have.

Question—when the fourth hand leads through a suit that was first bid by the dealer, and apparently denied by the third hand who gets the contract, what is the object—to force the declarer?—L. K. A.

Answer—It is a fundamental principle of play to lead through strength and up to weakness. If a suit is declared on your left and denied on your right, you are leading through a strong suit up to a player who has announced weakness in it. This gives you the advantage of making a correct play without having seen the dummy.

Question—Where can we get information and rules for running tournaments on the duplicate plan?—G. L. P.

Answer—Write to the Knickerbocker Whist Club for their rules. Address 28 West Fortieth Street, New York.

POKER

Question—The opener bets the limit after the draw, is raised and calls. His opponent lays down four tens. On seeing them the opener says, "That's good. I was lucky not to reraise. I had a jack full on kings." The player took down the pot, and as he did so, the man sitting next the opener said, "You have four jacks." On spreading his hand this he found to be the case. Who is to settle how much there was in the pot, the caller having mixed up the chips with his pile?—B. J. E.

Answer—There is no necessity to find out how much there was in that pot, which has been won and taken down. If a player who is called says "That's good," instead of following the rule and spreading his cards for the table to see, he must stand the consequences if he has undercalled his hand.

PINOCHLE

Question—When the count is by tens, what value is attached to the kings, queens and jack, so as to make them fit the scheme of having the total always come out in tens?—J. McD.

Answer—There are several ways of scoring the court cards according to local usage generally. Among some players, aces and tens each count 10 points; kings and queens, 5; jacks nothing. Among others, aces, tens and kings count 10 points each, the queens and jacks nothing. The old style of counting all court cards at a gradually reduced value is now seldom used, on account of its complication. The object in every case is to make the total count for the "cards" come out 250.

STRICT RULES WILL PROTECT COLLEGE BOXING

Universities Will Adopt The Sport This Season Under Control Of Central Board

Annapolis, July 24.—The future of boxing as an intercollegiate sport seems assured, according to information received by Lieutenant Commander William A. Richardson, gymnasium officer at the Naval Academy. More than seventy universities and colleges have signified their intention of engaging in the sport during the coming season, and rules have been adopted, after the most careful consideration, which it is believed will insure fairness and sportsmanship in connection with all bouts.

While those who are connected with the development of the sport in the colleges are enthusiasts on the subject they recognise that there are a number of features about boxing which make it different from other sports, and which, if not carefully safeguarded, will make it anything but a wholesome influence in the colleges.

COMMITTEE NAMED

The committee to which the work of framing these rules was committed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association consists of Lieutenant Commander Richardson, Hugo Bezdek, athletic director at Pennsylvania State College, and M. J. Pickering, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania. The three institutions represented are those which have taken a leading part in introducing boxing as a college sport.

The rules which have been adopted, and which govern al collegiate boxing next season, are based upon the boxing rules of the War Camp Activities, with certain modifications and additions. A special effort has been made to bring about the elimination of anything bordering on professionalism.

GOOD RESULTS SEEN

An important change, which will make possible the better matching of contestants, is the increasing of the number of classes from six to seven. The divisions will be the same as in wrestling, 115, 125, 135, 145 158 and 175-pound classes, with an allowance of three pounds in each, and the unlimited weight class.

Excellent results are expected to come from the establishment of a "Central Board of Officials," headed by Dr. Tait McKenzie, of the University of Pennsylvania. Its work will be not only to designate officials, but to see that they are properly instructed and qualified, and to render decisions on disputed points.

Vanderlip Says Japanese Admitted Grave Mistakes

Banker Tells Of Tokio Conference, Declaring Errors By Government And Military Party Were Frankly Acknowledged

BY FRANK A. VANDERLIP

I have tried to outline something of the nature and complications of the Far Eastern situation. With some vague knowledge of this problem in mind, it was natural that when an invitation reached me a few weeks ago, coming from a group of the most distinguished men in civil life in Japan, to form a small party of representative Americans to visit Japan, and to discuss with frankness some of the points of international friction between Japan and the United States, that such an invitation would seem attractive.

At the head of the welcome association which had been formed for the purpose of issuing this invitation was Baron Shibusawa. My acquaintance with him had extended over eighteen years, and I knew him as a man not only of great accomplishments in the business world of Japan, but as one dominated by the noblest purposes and the highest spirit. In that respect I would have ranked him among the greatest business men in all the world. His practical accomplishments easily gained him that rank on the material side, but his breadth of vision, his freedom from prejudice and, above all, his high spiritual character which quite transcends any classification of Oriental and Occidental, had for many years ranked him in my mind among the world's great citizens.

Associated with him were perhaps a hundred of the leading men in Japanese civil life. These included some who had important governmental relationships. There were members of the Privy Council and of the House of Peers and others who had held high positions in the political life of Japan. The invitation was clearly stated to be unofficial, but I was told that the Japanese government was entirely sympathetic to the proposed conference, and subsequently there was nothing left undone by the officials of the government and the imperial household to remove any doubt as to the sympathetic interest of the government.

THE AMERICAN PARTY

On our side we were of course completely unofficial. I chose the members of the party, all of whom were not only without any official influence but were not even representative of an organisation. We were merely a party of individuals, without political significance, and without representative character of any sort, or responsibility to any organisation. The American members of the party were, with a single exception, selected without any suggestion from our hosts. One member of our party, Mr. Lewis L. Clark, was invited at the request of Baron Kondo. The American party consisted of Hon. Lyman J. Gage, former Secretary of the Treasury; Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Darwin P. Kingsley, Dr. and Mrs. Jacob Gould Schurman, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Cromwell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Street, Mr. George Eastman, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Vanderlip. Mr. H. E. Benedict acted as general secretary of the American group.

The party sailed from Seattle April 10 and reached Yokohama April 24. It is not my purpose at the moment to describe the hospitality and courtesy of our welcome, nor the many entertainments that we received from individuals, government officials of the first rank, cities, provinces and the imperial household. I wish now to speak of the direct work of the conference itself, which was a serious and decidedly industrious interchange of views occupying six days. The meeting place of the conference was the beautiful residence of the Tokio Bankers Club. We met each morning at 9:30 promptly. The conference was organised by electing Baron Shibusawa honorary chairman and Viscount Kaneko and myself as active co-presidents. It was conducted in parliamentary form, with American and Japanese secretaries and American and Japanese stenographers. I hope later to make public a transcript of the whole proceedings of the conference.

At the first session a general program was laid down. The subjects agreed upon for discussion were the American immigration question, Shantung, Korea, Mongolia, Manchuria and Siberia, co-operative investments in China and elsewhere, and cable service between the United States and Japan.

VISITORS ARE ENTERTAINED

I had intended at this time to say nothing of the various welcome social functions, but I find it necessary to mention one incident because I believe it had a marked effect upon th temper of the conference and the attitude of the Japanese members, leading them to admit frankly that grave mistakes have been made by their government and by the military party. The conferences began Monday morning, April 26. The evening before the members of our mission were entertained by the Welcome Association at a dinner given at the Peers' Club. These were 200 guests at the dinner. After dinner the company immediately adjourned to a theater, where 200 more guests had assembled to witness a performance of the ancient "No" Drama, which had been specially arranged for our entertainment and to take part in welcoming the American guests. Before the performance Baron Shibusawa delivered a formal address of welcome.

Baron Shibusawa spoke seriously of the significance of the coming conference. He ventured the belief that we had come because we were interested in maintaining world peace and in promoting the happiness of mankind; and he declared that should there be any obstacle in the way of a perfect understanding between America and Japan that Japan was prepared to dispose of the matter in controversy in a manner which would permit the two nations to continue to enjoy their historic friendship. He predicted that the conference would result in a concrete contribution to the welfare of mankind.

Then he referred to the revolutionary change in the life of Japan, which had taken place in sixty years, and to the changing process that was still going on. Japan, he declared, is still in transition.

"For instance," Baron Shibusawa said, "if you look about you will no longer find men wearing top-knots on their head, nor the two swords of the feudal days. Observe the apparel of the guests. It does not present uniformity. We are about to present a performance of a type of drama which has a history running back five hundred years and is still indicative of a living aspect of the indigenous culture of Japan. Such a mixture you are apt to observe continuously during your sojourn in Japan. This is equally true of the spiritual aspect as well. By such a process of hybridisation Japan is progressing toward her ideal."

REPLIES TO ADDRESS

When I came to reply to the address of welcome, I hit upon the figure Baron Shibusawa had used of old Japan with its top-knot and two swords, and in the course of my reply said:

"I have noted what Baron Shibusawa has said about the change in Japan since feudal days. He has called our attention to the fact that we no longer find men here wearing top-knots on their heads, nor two swords at their side. I wonder if, in a sense, you who visit America do not find us wearing top-knots on our head and two swords at our side in a manner that makes you think that spiritually we are in some ways backward. Some of our countrymen wear top-knots on their head in the form of national conceit and at their sides they wear two swords—one a sword of misunderstanding and the other a sword of prejudice. I do not mean to say that we are all accoutered in that way. Many of us have grown to have a wider vision, to be more internationally minded and to have a sympathetic attitude toward the peoples of other countries and other races. But in some quarters there is still left something of prejudice and a good deal left of ignorance of world affairs. I hope to see America emerge from this mental feudalism, to see America become a nation of world-wide understanding and sympathy, discarding prejudice and reaching an understanding of the problems that other peoples have to face. Not until we do that as a nation can we hope truly to become the practical leader in world affairs that some people think, because of our size and wealth, we should become.

"We have come to a time in the world's affairs when each country should take a wider view than it has heretofore in regard to its international relations. It ought to be easy to see that the welfare of any particular nation is closely related to the welfare of other nations. International trade has become an important part of our lives. No country can hope to attain its best development while other countries with which it trades are lacking in prosperity and good government. It is important that each country be sympathetic in respect to particular problems that other countries face. Even if our national aspirations are selfish we still should see that it is best for us to conduct our international relationships in both a just and generous way."

"I quote these paragraphs from an impromptu reply to Baron Shibusawa's address of welcome because they were instantly the subject of sharp criticism by American residents in Japan. I received letters, messages and direct admonitions of protest. I could make no more glaring error while in Japan. I was told, than to admit the possibility of America having done anything wrong or of being anything less than perfect in attitude, policy or action. I got what amounted almost to a unanimous warning from American residents, including several attaches of our embassy, that it would be disastrous to assume an attitude that permitted the slightest admission of anything less than a belief in the perfection of American action and policy.

The result, however, indicated to me the unwisdom of my American advisers. What came to be known as the "top-knot" speech was printed and favorably commented on by the whole Japanese press, and at the very beginning of our councils it contributed toward making an atmpsphere in which our Japanese associates were frank in admitting mistakes on the part of their own government—errors in policy and inexcusable blunders by a far away military organisation.

Tungsha and Kiutoan Light-vessels to be temporarily withdrawn and replaced by relief light-vessels

NOTICE is hereby given that on or about the 4th October 1920 the Tungsha and Kiutoan Light-vessels, moored in the South Channel Entrance to the Yangtsze River, will be temporarily withdrawn from their stations and the stations marked by relief light-vessels as follows:—

The station of the Tungsha Light-vessel will be marked by the light-vessel normally functioning on the station of the Kiutoan Light-vessel, which vessel, will retain her own characteristics both as regards light and fog signal, i.e., A white light occulting every 17 seconds, thus:—

Light .....12 seconds
Eclipse ..... 5 seconds,

and a fog-bell struck three double blows each minute.

No name will appear on the vessel's sides.

The station of the Kiutoan Light-vessel will be marked by a relief light-vessel, 83 feet in length and painted red. The light, exhibited from a lantern carried by an iron trestle structure, will be dioptric, of the sixth order, showing an occulting white light every 3 seconds, thus:

Light .....0.3 seconds
Eclipse .....2.7 seconds

The center of the light will be 35 feet above the water, and should be visible in clear weather at a distance of 10 nautical miles. A black drum will encircle the trestle below the lantern as a day-mark. During foggy or thick weather a gong will be beaten at short intervals.

If the Light-vessel is driven from her station, the usual light will not be shown, but a fixed red light will be exhibited from each end of the vessel during the night and a red flag hoisted by day.

Exchange Market

In their report dated September 1, Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows:

Exchange:—The London price of silver at 58¾d. is 2⅛d. lower than last week, the quotation for forward delivery is down 2⅝d. Advices report that silver is offering and finding only small buyers, even at the decline. The Continent is again mentioned as a seller and as far as home markets are concerned silver appears weak. Our market for T.T. on London at 5s. 10d. is down 2d. The local Gold Dealers Market which has supported exchange in the last two months shows that unsteadiness which usually precedes a break in rates. Today after an endeavor to steady this market by sales of T.T. on London at 5s. 11¼d. we closed with the gold leaders buying at 5s. 10d. weak.

Local stocks of silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 32,760,000 a decrease of Tls. 400,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $24,330,000 an increase of $950,000.

Estimated total value in Taels 50,520,000.

Stock of silver on September 3, 1919, Total value Taels 29,300,000.

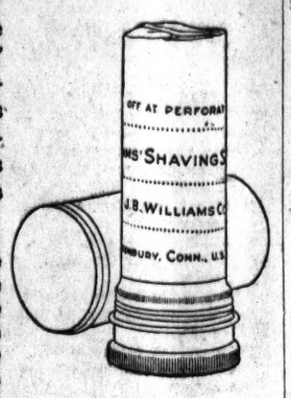
Williams'

Holder Top Shaving Stick

In hot climates the necessity of Williams' Shaving stick is paramount in Shaving. Its rich, lasting lather imparts a velvety coolness to the face which makes shaving a pleasure.

An added convenience is the Holder Top feature. The holder forms the top of the box when the stick is not in use and prevents the soap from touching fingers when being used. The Holder can be reloaded at less cost than the complete stick.



At all Chemists and Bazaars.

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION

No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.

Amount £750,000

Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920 the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams incurred through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24a Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

WEATHER

The typhoon which swept this morning, with a hurriance, Naha and the Meiaco-Simas, will cross the Eastern Sea, It present it threatens the coast about Wenchow or North of it. Squalls and shower at the mouth of the Yangtsze.. There remains a second centre to the South of Formosa: it will cause stormy weather in the South of the Strait. If our typhoon inclines a little North wards, one may expect a very High tide in the Yangtsze and the Whangpoo.

Dr. Reinsch Points The Way

RECENT letters from New York indicate that the credit of the Chinese government is in serious danger of impairment, and that this lessening of confidence on the part of the international banking groups is attributable to the government's attitude toward the Hukuang bonds. An extract from one letter reads as follows:

"Our news here as regards China is most discouraging. The Hukuang bonds have been thrown out of the British and French stock exchanges and New York is expected to follow suit in the near future. China's credit is dead here for the time being over her refusal to pay the German issue of the Hukuang coupons largely held by our, as well as British and French, investors."

The Chinese government, whatever the group of insensate self-seekers that has masqueraded in that name, has in recent years brought the Republic of China to the brink of ruin. Having messed up everything in China is it now setting out to smash China's credit abroad. And while the industry and commonsense of the Chinese people may be counted on eventually to straighten out the domestic situation, they are helpless when it comes to protecting China's international good name and credit.' That is a task that devolves upon the Chinese Government. International bankers in underwriting bond issues must deal with the government and must accept governmental guarantees.

And its credit abroad is the last thing that the Chinese government can afford to destroy for without that China will never be able to build herself up and take her rightful place in the group of great nations.

The only excuse we can find for the Chinese government of recent years lies in the fact that it has been ephemeral and fleeting. No one government has lasted long enough to accomplish anything and most of them have been so incompetent and corrupt and oppressive that they destroyed what little in the way of foundations for a real republic others had been able to build.

In this situation, when the domestic edifice has crumbled into ruins and the international good name is being dragged in the dust, the newly created Chinese Government will do well to heed the advice of Hon. Paul S Reinsch, former American Minister to Peking, in the memorandum he has just submitted and, which we published in full on September 1. Dr. Reinsch after reviewing the position in which China finds herself, says:

"While this condition lasts, the financial basis of the government cannot be sound. Financial support from the nation, by way of adequate taxation, can be provided only through a representative body. Nor are foreign nations justified in extending credit to a government which is incomplete in this most important respect, and whose action can therefore at any time in the future be justly repudiated by the nation which had not been represented in the action taken.

International relations are exceedingly complicated. Unless the action taken by the government can be given the full confidence of the nation, even good and desirable solutions will be impossible. Concessions made to other nations will not be understood by the people and will be taken to be a further selling of the birth right of the Chinese nation, unless indeed they can be explained satisfactorily to a representative body in whom the entire nation has confidence. Development in the international relations of China, and the satisfactory settlement of outstanding problems, are therefore impossible as long as no authoritative parliament exists.

The writer then proceeds to tell the Chinese government what is necessary to be done in order to restore both domestic and international peace, good order and credit, without which development and progress are impossible. He advocates the calling of a People's Constitutional Convention as a first measure. This convention should be made up of delegates selected by the existing live and practical organisations of China. "The fundamental basis of all legality is public consent expressed in an orderly manner. In a situation such as the present, it is therefore not only proper but it seems necessary to revert to a popular verdict for solution. . . . in arriving at such a decision the existing groupings and organisations of the people should be made the basis of action."

In other words Dr. Reinsch believes that use should be made of the commercial, industrial and educational groups. These should elect delegates to the convention who would carry out their will. The constitution itself should be the simplest possible document. It should merely "guarantee the presence at all times of a representative body whose consent to important acts of the government is necessary."

After that a new, authoritative Parliament representing the people could be elected and the government put on a sound basis. In this connection Dr. Reinsch points out that in the United States "legality has been the basis of authority for one hundred and fifty years, and never has the continuous application of law been interrupted. . . . The Republic of China can enjoy power and respect among the nations only if it establishes the same continuous application of law."

Here then is the plan of recovery carefully prepared by a man who is not only a firm and trusted friend of China but one of the very few men in the world who are qualified by education and experience for the task. And it is the only plan by which recovery can be accomplished.

China's house must be set in order. Dr. Reinsch, going home to enter upon a great contest for the United States Senatorship, has paused long enough to light the way. Will the Chinese Government have the vision and the patriotism which his program calls for?

Correspondence

COX'S CHANCES THE BRIGHTER

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.

Sir: THE CHINA PRESS as a newspaper places itself on high patriotic grounds by resenting any personal attack on either of the Presidential candidates. Both Harding and Cox are gentlemen, and it is an insult to the American people to intimate even that they would nominate a man for their President who was not a gentleman.

The attempt to accuse Cox of disloyalty is contemptible. Our government was in no sense required to strike Germany when she invaded Belgium. We had nothing whatever to do with the neutrality of Belgium. And Wilson did not ask Congress to declare war before being assured that the public sentiment of his country favored war. Can the wisdom of his course be doubted?

Cox is proving quite a live wire and is upsetting republican calculations. At this time his chances are the brighter. If Harding thinks so much should be done to reform the government why has he not attempted to do something? He has been in the Senate for some years and that is the place to begin reforms.

Please record my vote for Cox.

Yours truly,
T. R. JERNIGAN.

DEVON, GLORIOUS DEVON

"How you would love this country. Here time moves slowly like the silver thread of the Axe that I can see from my window winding its way to the waiting sea; the seasons follow in their place serenely; and love and birth and death come beautifully, each at its desired moment, so it seems, and sure of welcome.

"The serenity of life is wonderful. The 'fret of the soul' is not seen in the peasants' faces. A few small villages, an ancient church or two, the budding copses, woods of sycamore and birch and pine, the deep valleys, the eternal dreaming hills, the occasional lowing of the cattle, the sweet soft Devonshire air, stung sometime with the salt of the sea—these are the Alpha and Omega of existence here.

"Beauty always make me sad. I think it must be one's soul realising the impossibility of attaining the Perfect Thing seen afar off."

THE ULTIMATE PROFITEER

According to Reuter's wire of yesterday the price of coal has again gone up something like a dollar a ton.

It took Dame Nature several years
To make a ton of coal,
So we are told by highbrow seers
Who seek the brainy pole.
But if it took years, millions more,
To form the jetlike jade,
The price of coal so high doth soar
Dame Nature's well repaid.

OH, IT'S LOVELY TO BE IN LOVE

"I think that falling in love is the best occupation there is for both women and men. As a matter of fact, if we want to develop the best in us, we ought always to be in love with someone. Love is so progressive, so educative. I'm in that sort of humor that I could fall in love in a station waiting room.

"There is no sound so enchanting as the crackle of a love letter inside your corsets. To every right minded woman a love letter is the best pick-me-up invented. It raises one's soul above even such sordid details as bills and the water-rate. If I were Postmaster-General I'd institute a sacred delivery for love letters, and dress the postman like Cupid with wings."

LINES FROM LETTERS

Dear Algy: This dear little village of ours is waking up again after the fearful old tussle we had with those Hun blighters, and now instead of having them invade us, we are abso-bally-lutely over-run by our cousins from over the patch of beastly, bounding water, wherein Von Tirpitz and his frightful submarines used to kick up merry blazes. Mary Pickford Fairbanks started the craze, and we all fell for the dainty little filly. Why my dear old bean, she is simply topping! I'd leave my little place in the country any day for the picture peach. But Douglas seems to keep a weather eye open and a dirty left always in readiness. But what I really want to tell you, dear old thing, is the frightfully, awfully, beastly jolly way in which some of these visitors say what they bally well mean. Here is a sample or so to set your grey matter to trifle with:

"Say, Sonny, this traffic of yourn has just got me all chewed up. Just put me on the trolly so that I can strike the Strand of yours today. I like your London all very well, but Noo York calls me."

"Just lift your moustache and slip me the lip salve as to where little Mister Sidney can walk up to the eats establishment and quick-lunch a few things before the Departmental Dining Chief calls a board meeting of the hotel company and gets me blackballed."

"Do that, and it's me and you for ever. Amen. Do that and it will suit your Uncle Dudley good and proud. I'm just that chewed up I feel like milk before it curdles into brick cheese, and I must hold on to something. I'm hungry right down to the whiskerline, and I haven't enough kick to disturb the poise of your Prime Minister."

What hits me where the bottle got the stopper, in the throttle is, why they do it? But my dear old bean, why worry? Yes, old thing, why worry?

Yours, Algy, to a beastly cinder.

Cox The Governor As Revealed In Official Records

In an address recently before the Iriquos Club in Chicago Governor Cox dealt thus with the League of Nations issue:

"The League of Nations as a matter of public topic has resolved itself into a purely technical discussion, and the public is sick and tired of it. We have not fired a shot at a German battlement since November, 1918, and yet, legally, we are at war. We have been almost as long trying to formally establish peace as we were in winning the war.

"Charges and countercharges have been made, but we easily recall the bad faith exhibited early in the controversy. A dissenting group of Senators violated every precedent maintained throughout the years in an effort to vent personal spleen and political spite.

"The Constitution provides that the President shall submit a treaty made with a foreign power to the Senate. This could not have been done by him until he had returned to America. Before he landed, a coterie of Senators had procured the document from German hands and published it in America. That single circumstance tells the unprejudiced person that those who prevented the formalising of peace began their warfare against the League of Nations without patriotic impulse. Public interest will come back to this subject again once the definite result of Senaforial conspiracy is apparent, and I have the faith also that public opinion will render its verdict in words that will not be misunderstood."

In regard to the excess profits tax he said on that occasion:

"A considerable factor in the high cost of living is the continuance of the excess profits tax. In establishing the selling price of its product every business establishment sets aside a reasonable profit and then adds to it the amount that must be paid to the Government. This is done in turn by the manufacturer, the jobber, the distributer and the retailer, the inevitable result being a staggering cost to the consumer.

"Approximately four billion dollars will be necessary to conduct the departments of Government and to meet sinking fund and interest charges. Almost half of this could be derived by applying a tax of from 1 to 1½ percent on the volume of business done by any concern. . . .

"I favor the abolishment of the Federal inheritance tax just as soon as we can get along without it. This method of taxation should be left to the States. Tax on inheritances is based upon the principle of Government being compensated for service rendered in conveying property from one generation to another. A man makes a will and it has a definite force and effect because the law legalises it. The right is given to him by the State and the process of the distribution of his estate is through the agency of local government. The Federal authority has nothing to do with it, therefore the compensation for service rendered should be to the State."

TO REMEDY HIGH PRICES

Addressing the county prosecutors of Ohio last year on their investigation into the high cost of food, Governor Cox said:

"If we find that in the commercial relations between men the lust for gain was satisfied by artfully created privilege, then the common law must be invoked to bring it to an end. If the law is insufficient, the quicker we know it the better. If we do not possess the constitutional right to pass the necessary legislation, then the facility is open to change the Constitution. That process is the very essence of evolution. It stands out as the direct opposite of revolution, and it is the surest guarantee of orderly government."

Governor Cox believes in educational and industrial advantages for the negro. In telling the General Assembly about the work at Wilberforce University, the State school for colored students, he said:

"Statistics show that practically all the colored population in Ohio is resident in the cities. No part of it worth mentioning has drifted toward the countryside, where labor conditions have at times become more or less acute. Out of this situation comes the proposal of an agricultural course based upon the physical facilities accruing from additional land.

"The food question today is more complex than it has ever been before. The shifting of population from the country to the city has brought about a vast congestion in centers where millions, even though usefully employed, are entirely dependent upon others for the food supply. It may be that governmental invention is a necessity. Progress in the arts follows a new call on utilities that were sufficient in the past. We have many governmental departments—the judicial, educational, industrial, agricultural—but no single unit has been established for the control of food. The time may have come when conditions will be vastly improved by creating such an organisation in every county, and have it tied into a directing head attached to the State Government."

And at the conference of Governors in Washington in March, last year, Governor Cox said:

"I have heard the opinion expressed in this presence during this meeting that the Government should no longer concern itself with affairs industrial; that we should break the leash and the fetters, so-called, and permit business to go on as it might otherwise go. Those boys across seas fought for us and for our Government, and, as one Governor of the Union of States, I am in favor of Government interesting itself now in the affairs of those boys—call it paternalism or what-not.

PRICES NOT JUSTIFIED

"We completed our specifications and asked for bids in order to build $10,000,000 of good roads in our State, and we found just what you gentlemen will find, either in State or municipality, if you will make careful survey—the prices of brick higher than they were a year ago, notwithstanding the price of coal has been almost cut in two; the price of cement more than it was a year ago, without any justification whatsoever; the price of washed gravel more than it was a year ago; and the price of crushed stone as well: Now, there is absolutely no justification for that Quite naturally the Government halted, because we want the prosperity that is to come from the projects in mind to be builded upon the elements of solidarity. Now, what we found with respect to public projects was precisely the same as the situation confronting those who contemplated building either residence or industrial plants."

In his address at Columbus to the brick manufacturers Governor Cox touched upon high prices in those words:

"The high cost of living will be affected favorably to us all as the Government expense is reduced. We may just as well understand that we are going to have more or less of an inflation so long as the Government debt remains large. The debt was increased as a result of our response to the call of civilisation, but I am persuaded, after having served in Congress on the great Committee on Appropriation, that the Government is running as nearly as possible as a successful business is conducted. In a very short time the exorbitant taxes can be abandoned, sufficient revenue will be derived from the ordinary methods of taxation, including the income tax and the inheritance tax, and I am not so sure but the inheritance tax should be abolished by the Federal Government. Only the State, in my judgment, ought to invoke, except in great times of emergency, this form of taxation.

"If a business man took hold of a great business and found that its operating expenses had been multiplied as a result of special exigencies and emergencies, that man of business, just as soon as the crisis had passed, would probably make up the budget or payroll and go back to the normal day. If the budget system were adopted in this country, as adopted in some States—Ohio, for instance—the Government ought to begin with the payroll as it was before the war, the expense as it was before the war, and permit no dollar to be added except upon full confidence and information that would abundantly justify it. Then, I believe we would be approaching a normal basis."

ATTITUDE TOWARD GERMANY

No one who reads Governor Cox's proclamation in behalf of the Red Cross and Liberty Loan campaigns and his call to the colors, can doubt his hearty loyalty. He asked the Assembly to forbid the teaching of German in the public schools, and "squeeze every germ of Prussianism" out of the State. He was dissatisfied with a statute already in effect and delivered a special message on April 1, 1919, in which he took up at considerable length the activities of German propagandists in this country, the importance attached by them to the teaching of their language in the schools and the machination of the German-American Alliance.

"In one Ohio city alone," he said, "forty-three teachers of German were called before the superintendent's staff. Sixteen of them were convicted of disloyalty and dismissed, two of them were suspected of being German spies. One of them declared publicly that those who were a active in her trial "would be glad to prostrate themselves before her and humbly beg for pardon when the war was over and the Kaiser ruled America." In one city of the State five hundred and forty minutes per week or nine hours, were devoted to the study of German in the first four grades; from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and forty minutes weekly or, two hours, were considered an ample time for the study of arithmetic in the first to the fifth grade, and the study of English grammar was given no time until the sixth grade was reached, when it grudgingly received thirty minutes per week. In the eighth grade German received more attention than any other study; in fact no other study received half as much time. The German students received only half the instruction in geography that the English scholars were given. They devoted twenty percent less to history and approximately fifty percent less to the study of English.

"A leaflet was printed on the work of the German propaganda in the schools of the city in question, and in it we find the statement that 'many of the German teachers will not read a newspaper printed in the English language.' In the text book 'Hier and Dort,' used in Ohio schools, we find that Washington is discredited. When that period of American history is reached, the text says that Washington lost the confidence of his countrymen, that the army knew no discipline, that it became disorganised, and that troops and officers were on the point of open mutiny, whereupon a German, Baron Steuben appeared on the scene, saved the day and made America possible. It deals prejudically with Lafayette, seeks to minimise the service he rendered to our cause, and makes invidious comparison between him and Steuben. You would expect that the brief selection on Washington's burial place would be free from anything German, but the last paragraph compares the simplicity of Washington's tomb with that of Frederick the Great. A poem entitled 'From the Battlefield at Chancellorsville' is in the book, but we find that it was a German soldier who 'lies dying at Chancellorsville.' An article appears called 'Christmas,' but it deals with nothing of the sacred tradition of that holy season; it tells only about the German celebration of Christmas, and says that when we sit down Christmas Eve we should remember that the celebration of Christmas was a custom kept by the German forefathers, and that we should have no Christmas trees now if the Germans had not brought the custom here with them.

TO ELIMINATE LANGUAGE

"My proposition," he said in conclusion, "is that the Comings bill be so amended as to carry no limitations, and that it be made unlawful for any one anywhere in this State to teach German to the children in the grades, whether they attend public, private or parochial schools, it matters not. If there is no menace from the teaching of German to the impressionable youth in private or parochial schools, then by what process of reasoning do you gain the idea that it is a menace in the public schools? As the measure is now framed, it provides sequestered places where German propaganda will be sheltered by the arm of the law. It is the very thing in fact that has been resorted to in other places.

"I think you will see, therefore, that the very thing which you propose to do is precisely what the German propagandists would do in their last extremity. Assured that you sense what is in the minds of those you represent and that you intend your actions to be but legal expressions of their desires, I have no doubt that the Comings bill, passed through misconceot of the conditions about us, will be at once freed from the limitations which make it both odious and indefensible.

"I make the further recommendation that teachers shall, by statutory direction, be compelled to take the oath of allegiance to this country. We have had our bitter experiences, and love for our children compels us in common prudence to protect them from 'the wolf in sheep's clothing.'"

Study of Stars, Trees and Rocks Gives Both Pleasure and Profit to Average Man—How to Improve Vacation

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
(Eminent Astronomer and Writer on Problems of Scientific Interest)

Recently I ventured to recommend the study of trees as a subject likely to greatly increase the enjoyment of a visit to, or a residence in the country. There are surprisingly few people who know by sight more than three or four species of trees—if so many—although trees are among the most conspicuous, beautiful, interesting and varied objects in a landscape. To call them all merely "trees," without recognition of the wide differences among them is intellectually disgraceful.

But the popular ignorance of rocks is hardly less to be deplored.

Everybody reads and hears of granite, but how many know granite when they see it? There is a kind of rock named "gneiss," which forms a floor over fully one-half of Manhattan Island and outcroppings of which may be seen in Central Park and many other exposed parts of the island, but of the millions who walk over it, or pass it, does one in a hundred know what it is? Yet, with its glittering specks and little plates of mica, it is a rock easily recognised and remembered. Then there is limestone. Can you recognise limestone, a kind of rock whose substance was formed by living creatures millions of years ago?

SATISFACTION IN KNOWING

It is a pleasure, and an advantage as well, to be able to tell at a glance what kind of stone has been employed in the construction of some notable building, or masterpiece of architecture. If on a country road you pass a great outcropping of rock, forming a towering cliff or a picturesque buttress, it is very satisfactory to be able to say: "That is granite, or gneiss, or limestone, or sandstone." It has more significance for you if it bears a name that you know, and characteristics that you can recognise it by.

If you visit a foreign land and write about the scenery that has interested you, though it be only in private letters, you feel that what you have written gains in importance and value if you are able to call nature's people—the animals, the trees and flowers, and no less the rocks and stones, by their proper names, which shows that you really know them, and have been admitted on familiar terms into their society.

Suppose you had paid a visit to Venus or Mars, and undertook to write a description of what you had seen. Unless you know more of terrestrial species than simply that there are such things as trees, bushes, flowers, birds, four-footed animals, rocks and stones—unless you knew at least the principal varieties and kinds of these things—you would produce a very dull and uninforming book about those other planets. You could only say, for instance, that there were rocks on Venus, and trees, and animals, but you could not say whether those rocks, trees and animals resembled those of the earth, except in the most general way.

When you read a book of exploration you miss more than half the value and interest of what you read unless you have in your mind pictures based upon what your own eyes have beheld and recognised, of the granite, the limestone, the sandstone, etc., which the author talks of, and, of course, the same is true of the other natural objects that constitute the subject of his descriptions.

NEXT AFTER ASTRONOMY

To know by sight the chief kinds of rock and stone is the beginning of a knowledge of geology, which in its power to enlarge the understanding through a controlled use of the imagination I would place next after astronomy.

When you start on your vacation take along novels and romances, if you feel that you must, but take also, for a counter-irritant to keep your personal intelligence active, a book on rocks, stones, minerals and geological history. It is difficult to recommend particular books. I myself find that I have not outgrown the friend of earlier days, Dana's "Geological Story Briefly Told." Very likely there are later editions of it which keep it up to date on technicalities, but even an old edition will delight you and can in no important respect possibly mislead you.

But do not let me give you the impression that the things I am speaking of can be learned without application, however excellent a guide you may find in a book. The most that I can hope to do for you is to inspire a decisive desire to acquire this sort of knowledge. If I can persuade you that you will be happier—far happier, for its possession, that is enough; then you will overcome whatever little obstacles you may encounter.

A good way to begin is to look carefully at the first rock, or stone, that attracts your attention. Notice its color and texture, observe whether it is made up of grains apparently soldered together, or is "all of a piece," notice the size, shape, etc, of its component grains and whether they appear to be crystals; observe whether the material is hard or soft. Identify it as well as you can with the aid of your book, make up your mind as to what it probably is, and call it that until further experience corrects your error if you are wrong. Such is the entrance into all science.

DO THINGS PROPERLY

Someday or other you'll want a Fox Skin. So why not do things properly, why not prepare for that day. Why not buy a Fox Skin that is different from the ordinary China Fox Skin. Let an expert who knows all about Fox Skins select one for you, a real beauty with nice long fur, and oh, what a bushy tail! Send a Chinese Post Office money order for $25 to MR. ELLY WIDLER, TA TSING LU, SZECHWAN PROVINCE, and he will at once mail you one of these specially selected Tibetan Fox Skins.

The word perihelion means in astronomy nearest point of any planet in its orbit to the sun. If any planet, comet or asteroid—little planets between Mars and Jupiter—should traverse a circle, there would be no perihelion nor aphelion—farthest from the sun. But all of the planets and asteroids really should be planet-oids and many comets revolve around the sun on ellipses. Then the sun is in one of the foci, not in the center of the great ellipse traversed by the earth annually.

Perihelia of the earth would always occur in January were not the earth perturbed in its orbital motion. But the seven other planets also move around the sun in the same direction as seen by an observer in any north latitude on earth facing the equator, which is from west to east, over from right to left or opposite to motions of the hands of a watch. But every particle of matter in existence attracts every other directly as to mass and inversely as to squares of the distance between. The result of this variable intensity of attraction is that all of the planets are off the track all of the time.

If only the sun and earth existed, the earth would move on a smooth ellipse. But it really travels on an ellipse made up of short and long bends or turns this way and that, now inside and then outside the true orbit. Could we see the actual path of the center of the earth in space we would see a curious series of irregular curves and the orbit would present a wavy appearance. The huge masses of Jupiter and Saturn pull the earth and other planets this way and that. Sometimes they are ahead of the earth—farther east—and make it move faster than normal—and sometimes to the west or rear, and retard its orbital speed.

The effect on perihelion passage is to cause the earth to arrive ahead or behind time. And also to be at varying distances at actual nearest point. After three centuries of exacting mental toil, astronomers have fairly well solved all problems of planetary perturbations. Thus the two perihelia of this good year 1920 were completed four years ago in the United States Naval Observatory in Washington. And so well have the equations been equated that perihelion in January came on the exact time. The table shows that in the years 1881, 1883, 1902 and 1913 there were no perihelia. When there is no nearest approach in January, it is because perturbations hastened it, so that it occurred late in December the preceding year. From perhelion in 1871, December, 31 d. 9 h., to that of 1920, January, 3 d. 10 h., is a perturbation of 73 hours. This means over five million miles, for the earth travels 18.4927 miles per second of time.

These are for perihelia. But in order to compute the precise times of coming transits of Mercury and Venus and of eclipses of the sun and moon for many years in the future, exalted mathematicians must know the precise distances of all the planets from the sun, and from each other, and how much these vary, how fast each moves on its orbit, and the variations of speed, and how much each planet weighs, to compute the strength of their attraction; and most complex of all, how much this attraction varies with varying distances. An entire branch of high mathematics, the calculus of variations, has to be employed in this gigantic task. But the formidable difficulties have been conquered, for these mighty masters have computed eclipses, transits, occultations, oppositions, perihelia and aphelia and the equinoxes to within one minute of time.

What a blessing for Perry and others in the North and Amundsen and other explorers in the distant South to have these wondrous ephemerides to study in long vigils of polar night, to see at a glance where were the sun, moon, planets and the ecliptic stars. Thus they knew their latitudes and longitudes for every minute in the year.
